

Determinations – Leslie Arthur Rhodes

Leslie Rhodes was unlawfully killed.

On 22 March 2017 Leslie Rhodes was walking from the South Bank side of Westminster Bridge towards the North Bank side. He was struck from behind by a Hyundai vehicle which had been deliberately driven onto the pavement where he was walking. This was part of a terrorist attack. Leslie was carried along into the carriageway a distance of 33 metres. As a result of the impact, he suffered a devastating brain injury, which was not survivable. He was unconscious from the time of the impact until his death. Despite early medical attention from a hospital doctor and paramedics at the scene, and despite proper treatment at King's College Hospital, Leslie died on 23 March 2017 in hospital.
